

Medtronic

Let your patients live their best lives

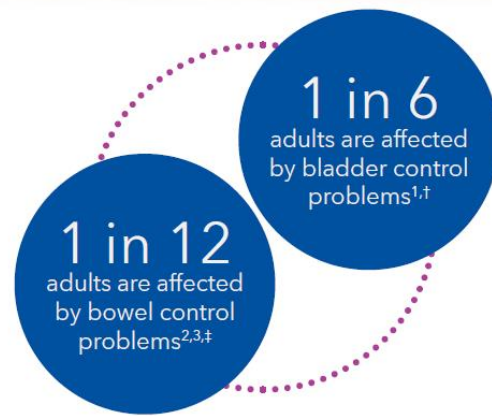

Urinary and bowel incontinence are not inevitable.

Let's work together to improve patient care.

Partner with a pelvic health specialist to learn more about InterStim™ systems and help your patients find substantial relief.

- Understand these conditions, their prevalence, and the treatment pathway.
- Discover effective treatments beyond medications.
- Explore partnership opportunities to expand your options.

Attend Our Event!

Hosted by:

Dr. Thomas Pitman

Time:

6:00pm

Email to confirm attendance:

Call David at (901) 483-0480

Date:

Tuesday, September 5th, 2023

Location:

Silver Oaks Room at Mesquite Chophouse

Co-sponsored by Medtronic and

Baptist Memorial Group

[†]Estimate based on U.S. adults that meet the criteria for overactive bladder.

[‡]Estimate based on U.S. adults that meet the criteria for fecal incontinence.

1. Stewart WF, et al. Prevalence and burden of overactive bladder in the United States. World J Urol. 2003 May;20(6):327-336.

2. D'Alai L, Devalis P, Luma HN, et al. Prevalence, trends, and risk factors for fecal incontinence in United States adults, 2005-2010. Clin Gastroenterol Hepatol. 2014;12:636-643.

3. Whitehead WE, Borrud L, Goode PS, et al. Fecal Incontinence in US adults: epidemiology and risk factors. Gastroenterology. 2009;137(2):512-517.